Jared is a partner in the firm's Litigation Department and Health Law Group. A thoughtful and dynamic lawyer, clients turn to Jared for his sound judgment and practical advice in their most critical moments.

Jared routinely counsels regulated healthcare professionals on a wide range of regulatory matters, including investigations, complaints, discipline proceedings, capacity inquiries, and registration. He is a trusted advisor to healthcare practitioners, organizations, and entrepreneurs on all aspects of their statutory, regulatory, and professional rights and obligations including ongoing compliance. When necessary, Jared provides strong and effective representation and advocacy, and argues cases before courts and tribunals on a wide range of healthcare and administrative matters.

Outside of his law practice, Jared dedicates most of his time and energy to raising his three young children together with his wife. He is also an avid cyclist, reader of fiction and history, and collector of vintage jazz, soul, and Brazilian records.
